

Consistently named one of the most "wired" campuses, Seton Hall's online Master degree programs prove to suit this title perfectly. The Master's in Strategic Communication and Leadership program is the perfect segue to the next level of your career. Our fusion of face-to-face and online learning makes this blended program, a cohesive and full interactive experience; ideal for the on-the-go professional.

Seton Hall University's online Master of Arts in Strategic Communication and Leadership (MASCL) has been providing a powerful, yet, one-of-a-kind curriculum of leadership combined with strategic communication expertise since 1998. Our cohort model has enabled professionals to achieve business success for over 10 years.

Who Should Apply?

Prospective candidates for the online Master's degree in Strategic Communication and Leadership possess 5-10 years of significant experience in various fields that include but are not limited to corporate, military, governmental or nonprofit, and are seeking to develop and enhance their communication skills in preparation for advanced career responsibilities.

Admission Requirements

- An undergraduate degree from an accredited institution
- Official transcripts
- Three letters of recommendation (academic or professional)
- Essay
- Current résumé
- Work sample

Courses and Residencies

The online Master of Arts in Strategic Communication and Leadership program is an 18-month, 36-credit program consisting of five sequential learning modules that include extensive online interaction with faculty and peers, and an individualized component to enhance presentation and writing skills. The program also requires three on-campus weekend residency visits, which affords you the opportunity to meet face-to-face with professors and your peers in the program. Students rave about this blended model for distance learning.

Tuition

Tuition for all Seton Hall University graduate programs is $946 per credit hour. The cost of tuition for MASCL is all-inclusive covering the cost for your courses, room, board and meals during the residencies. Outside costs include transportation to and from each residency and materials needed for the modules. Seton Hall provides scholarships for students, participates in company Tuition reimbursement programs and is listed on FAFSA, school code: 002632.

Seton Hall University's online degree and certificate programs were created with the busy professional in mind. We know the importance of "anytime, anywhere" education. Utilizing state-of-the-art learning technologies in a highly interactive educational environment, our programs are built on practical, rigorous curricula. We are currently accepting applications for the September 2011 (LT 31) and March 2012 (LT 32) cohorts.

For more information and to apply today, go to our website at <http://www.shu.edu/go/mascl>